FY 2019 Year in Review Report — presented by Finance Director Leslie Haase

Our annual audit results in the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report otherwise known as the CAFR. The CAFR was briefly presented to Council at a recent meeting. Council reviews the budget document during budget work sessions. Both documents are hundreds of pages full of numbers in the prescribed accounting format. Both documents are challenging to understand. For internal staff, city council and the public, the only real review of the city’s finances is at budget time. Each September, we go through the proposed budget document for the next year, which does include a snapshot of the previous ten years of financial information. However, our focus during these meetings is naturally in the future rather than the past.

As a result, last year, we held the first fiscal year-end financial review prior to the budget work sessions for next year. This discussion serves as a bridge between each annual budget preparation on behalf of internal staff, council and the public. Monthly financials are prepared and submitted to the City Manager’s office, while this presentation allows for a detailed public discussion about our annual financial reports. This report is not a year-to-year (multiple year) comparison, but rather a budget-to-actual comparison for fiscal year 2019.

While this report contains a lot of numbers, I would like to walk you through the financials in order to help understand our current financial standing. There will be some areas of discussion in preparation of finalizing the FY 2021 proposed budget. Any comments related to this report are not a reflection of the services being provided by departments or the value of those services but are strictly financial in nature. Please ask any questions that you have as we discuss this report as the goal is for everyone to have a good understanding of the city’s finances. With that being said, I would like to briefly cover each fund and discuss the areas where staff needs some direction.

General Comments

- Budgets are prepared during the middle of the previous year
- Under charter regulations, expenditures within a department/fund can’t exceed budget
- There is only one way to add to fund balance or net assets-revenue must exceed expenditures
- One-time revenues should add to fund balance or net assets, such as FEMA reimbursements
- As we move through the funds and departments, I encourage you to think about the purpose and services provided by each of them
- Describe the formatting of the report (IS first and then BS) (Headers)(Review Original Budget plus Encumbrances vs. Actual Amounts

FY 2020 Financial Projections

In February, the City’s finances were definitely improving. The final FEMA reimbursements were received late last year, the voters of our community approved a ½-cent sales tax to close and fund our pension plan in order to improve our employee recruiting and retention efforts, and we were on the brink of paying off the Recovery TIF bonds. Unemployment in the United States was at a half-century low of 3.5%. Then, in March, the world changed with the COVID-19 pandemic. As businesses closed and employees were laid off temporarily to help slow the spread of the virus, governments dependent upon sales tax or earnings tax as their major revenue source began to make short-term spending adjustments, including us here at the City. Since there is a two-month delay in sales tax collections, staff immediately began estimating the impact to sales tax and other revenues. While various city revenues have been impacted by this crisis, sales tax is our major revenue source.

Tonight, we are going to discuss the fiscal year 2020 financial projections and the short-term solutions to offset the impacted revenue sources. Some funds will be impacted more than other funds, and as such, the projections only include operational-type funds. The revenue projections are solely based on forecasts, while Department Heads supplied expenditure reductions. These projections are being updated each month as sales tax information is received. It is safe to say the accuracy of the revenue projections is suspect, at best. With this pandemic, the likes of which hasn’t been experienced in our lifetime, the unknowns far outweigh the knowns. Continued monitoring of our revenue sources, along with reduced expenditures is critical. While we are going to discuss some short-term solutions that have been implemented, it is equally important that the city prepare to react with longer-term solutions if the recovery doesn’t occur as shown in these projections.

The projections are built on several assumptions:

- Estimated decrease in revenues impacted by COVID-19
- No cut in services outside of anything directly or indirectly related to COVID-19
- Some purchases will be delayed due to a reduced need as the result of COVID-19
- COVID-19 purchases and related reimbursement not included in these projections
- CARES grants for MAPS and Airport included
- Savings due to the reduction in police and fire pension expense as a result of closing the plan to new hires and funding the plan with the voter-approved 1/2-cent sales tax
- Savings due to Recovery TIF bond payoff

The short-term solutions table shows citywide solutions, as well as solutions for specific funds. Also shown is the estimated budget impact and the actual impact of the solution. While these solutions can be classified as “tightening our belt” on expenditures, there is an inherent impact or “cost” to these solutions. The solutions do impact the ability to provide quality services to our citizens, increase maintenance costs by postponing needed capital, and impact employee morale, and as such it is important to discuss the impacts of the solutions. With that said, businesses in our community, as well as across the country, have also been hard hit as a result of this pandemic. As mentioned in the Bloomberg report, most cities and states have laid off and furloughed employees, as well as adopted the short-term measures we are going to discuss. As we saw in the fiscal year 2019 year in review, while our reserves have begun to build back, reserves can only be used as a stop gap for ongoing expenditures for a limited time. Joplin is fortunate in that our economy is resilient and we have not had to enact longer-term solutions, such as layoffs or furloughs. However, also mentioned in the Bloomberg report, is the uncertainty of how COVID-19 will persist or if there will be a second wave that results in extending the economic impact. Additionally, with the upcoming end to the government added unemployment benefits and the question of exactly when and how jobs will recover, it is fiscally prudent for the City to continue to follow the short-term solutions throughout this recovery process. Throughout this recovery process, it is important for staff to continue to monitor our revenue and update the financial projections. As previously mentioned, as we move through the recovery process, it is important that staff remains prepared to address any unforeseen bumps in the road to recovery. In the meantime, the fiscal year 2021 budget is being prepared, with more unknowns than knowns. As a result, some decisions and projects may be required to be postponed until our revenue stream is back on track.
Health Department Update
Assistant Director of the Health Department Ryan Talken provided recent numbers of coronavirus cases in Joplin and stated that they’ve doubled in just two weeks. He also discussed the steady increase that Jasper County Health Department is experiencing, as well as neighboring Newton and McDonald Counties. We are seeing a spike right now and it’s important that we stay the course to help lessen the spread of the virus. With these numbers rising, we need to get back to the basics of washing our hands, disinfecting common items shared by others at home or in the office, and of course to keep social distancing. Staying in this step sends the right message. By taking care of yourself, you are taking care of everybody else. Talken also stated that if people are feeling sick to stay home. While COVID-19 is spread from person to person, more than 80% of the patients who develop it will only become mildly ill. The concern is for patients with underlying medical conditions and the elderly, who are more likely to need hospital-level supportive care.

Recovery Plan Discussion
After hearing the update from Mr. Talken, the City Council discussed Missouri Governor Mike Parson’s Phase 2 of the Show Me Recovery Plan, which goes into effect Tuesday, June 16. According to the plan, there will be no statewide public health order – Missouri will be fully open for business. Local officials will have the ability to put further measures or regulations in place, but from a statewide stance, all restrictions will be lifted. During the discussion, the city council expressed concern about the rise in the number of COVID cases. Mr. Lawson motioned to keep the City of Joplin at Phase 2, Step 2 of the City’s Recovery Plan. Dr. Reid Adams seconded the motion. Voting in favor were Council Members: Copple, Cortez, Lawson, Monteleone, Reid Adams, Shaw, Stanley, Stinnett and Williams, 9. Nays: 0.
